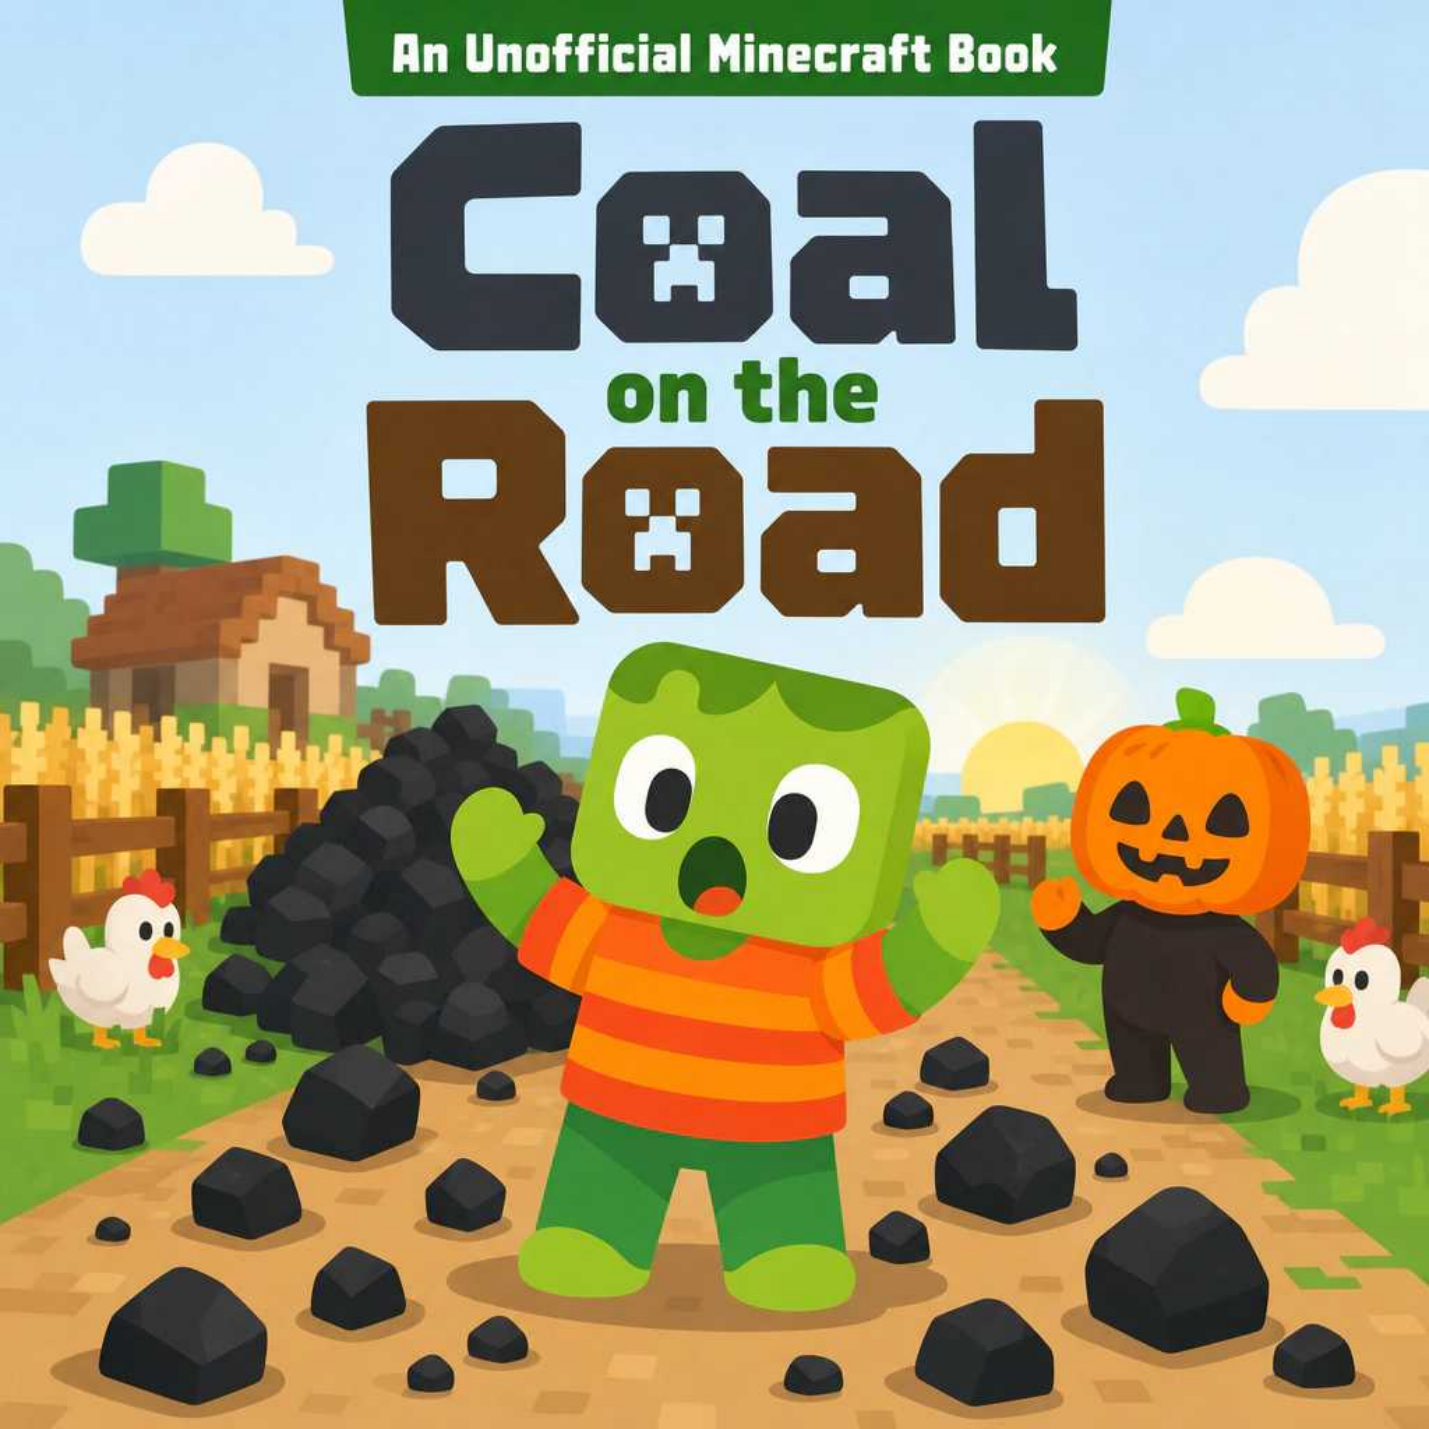
Coal on the Road



One day,

Zom woke up with a moan.

What an odd sight!

The farm was full of cakes! He gave a groan.

Jack thought it was funny. Skel let out a moan.

They had to load the cakes and send them down the road.

The next day, there was coal on the grass and by the crops.

Skel hauled

each load with a groan. Jack

just grinned,

no help at all.

Zom found Jack by the wheat. 'It was not me!' Jack said, hands up.

'But you did gloat,' Zom said with a groan.

Zom kept watch by Jack's door. No one went down the road all night.

And yet, the next day, eggs sat on each path and road!

Jack ran down the road to gloat.

He had a big box of eggs!

This time, Skel kept watch all night. He stood by the road with his bow.

Late that night, he saw Jack. Then a load of Jacks ran up the hill. It is a Jack Attack!

OA

Coal on the Road

Zom's farm is acting very strange. First cakes, then coal, then eggs - all appearing overnight on the road and in the crops! Is Jack the grinning pumpkin behind the pranks, or is something even weirder going on? Skel is fed up, Zom is losing sleep, and Jack just keeps laughing. Can they catch the culprit before the farm falls apart? This decodable reader practices the oa phonogram in words like 'cloak,' 'groan,' 'load,' and 'road.'
