DR. CAN DO
NOT AGAIN,
DR. CAN DO!

Dr Can Do has a big, mad growl. His lab is a mess; it makes him scowl.

He packs it up and stacks it all away. Now his lab is clean; it took all day.

But all that junk made one huge pile of stone! He looks at the mess and gives a scowl. 'I will throw it all out!' he says with a howl.

Down he heads to the red lava flow. He throws stuff in, but oh, it is so slow.

Dr Can Do has a big new plan right now! 'A trash chest down low, and I will show you how!'

Dr Can Do sets his chest down low, and red dust starts to glow. The trash slides down to the hot lava flow, safe and hidden down below.

Now his lab is clean; Dr Can Do grins wide. He has space to work and plan with pride.

He has a new idea already.

Oh no! His lab is in a mess; the junk will grow.

Not Again, Dr. Can Do!

Dr. Can Do's workshop is a disaster - you can't even see the floor! Can one very grumpy inventor actually tidy up without getting distracted? When he spots a huge pile of stone he'll never use, he hatches a wild plan involving lava, redstone, and a clever disposal device. But will tidying really stick, or will the mess creep back? This decodable reader practices the 'ow' sound with lesson words like 'blow,' 'glow,' 'scowl,' 'howl,' and 'throw.'
