

Oak Wood Huts

See the big green trees on the land.

A creek cuts
deep in it. Yes,
this is a forest!

We can cut a tree and get wood. We craft planks and tools. Yep, wood
is the best!

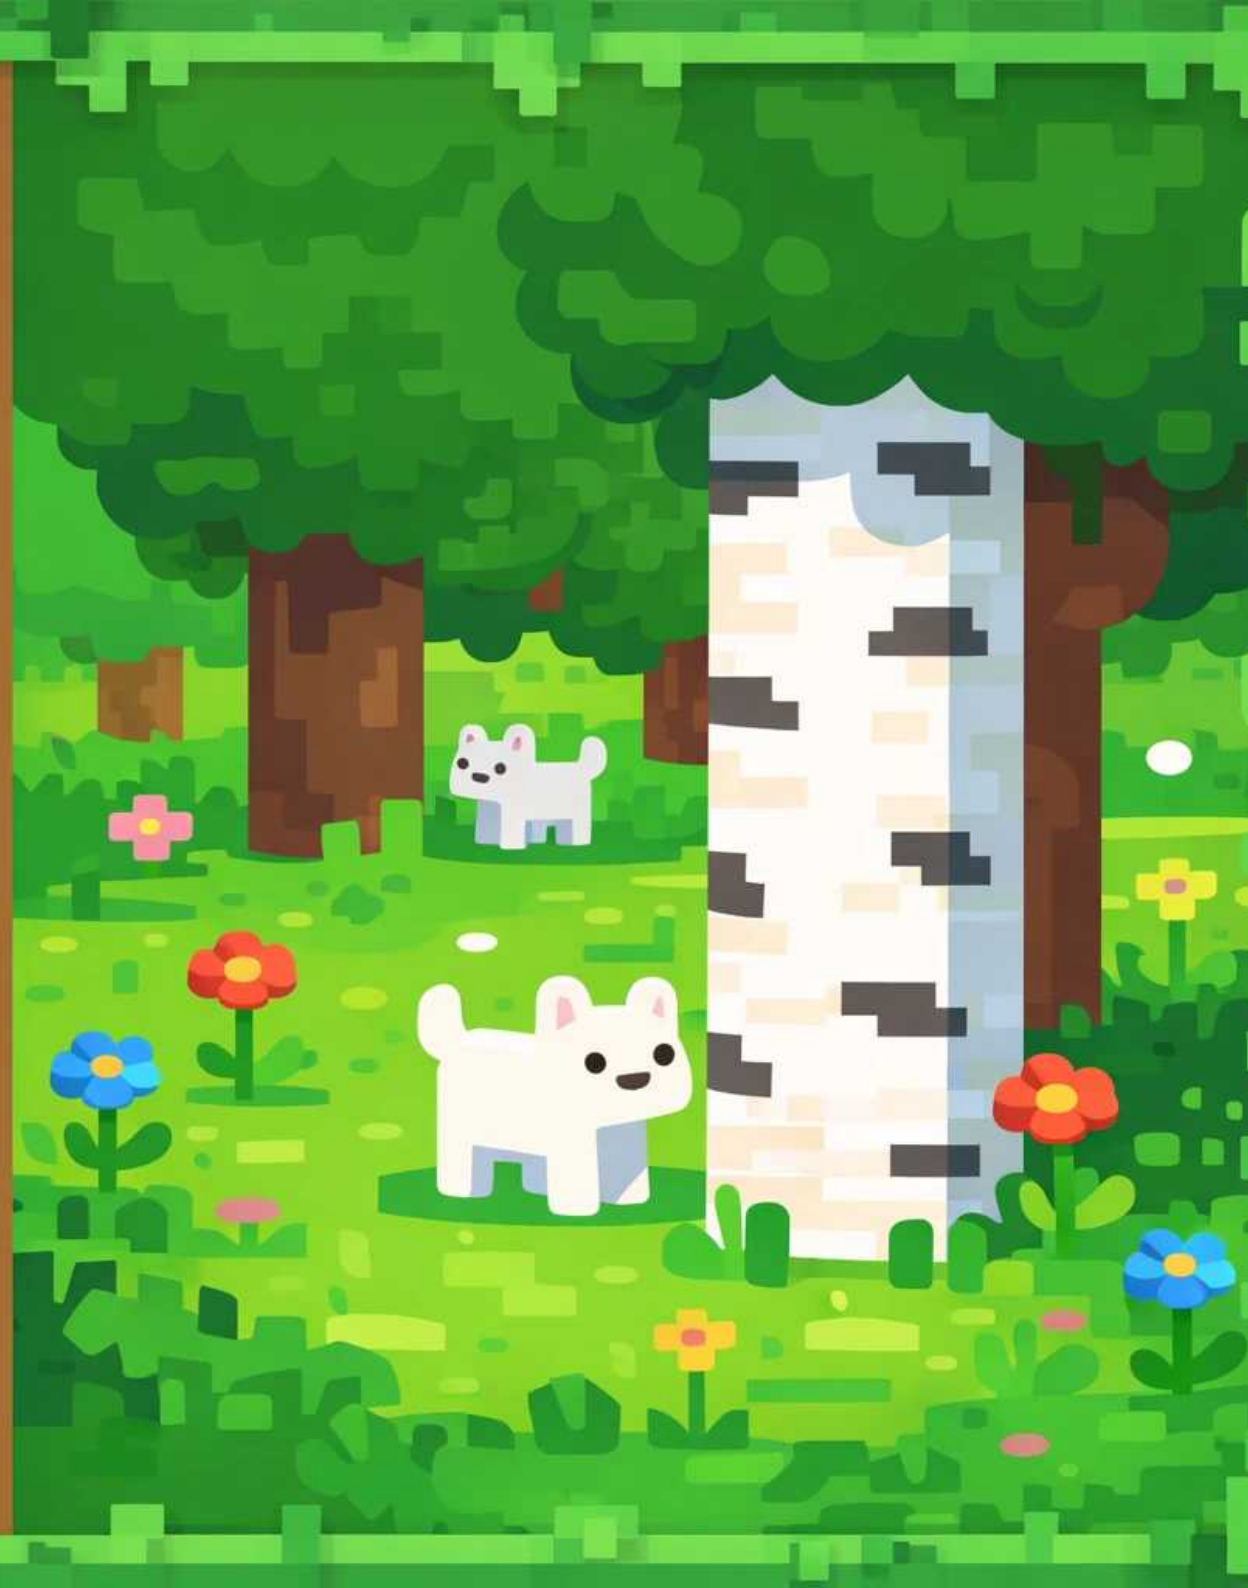

She treks in
the dim forest.
A mob can peek from yon
trunk. Keep back, mob!

This land has blooms and big trees.

An animal feeds
at the trunk.

Yum, yum!

The trees in this forest get big.

The sun is up,
yet the land is
dim.

Yuck! A mob,
and a mob, and
a mob!

It is dim, and mobs can attack. Run, run!

A forest has a
lot for us.

We pick seeds
and blooms.

Yup, we get a lot!

See yon
stumps on the land.

If we cut a lot,
we get just stumps.

A pig and an animal stand at the stumps. The pig yelps. It is sad, as its land has just stumps.

We dig and we plant.

Bit by bit, the
plants get big.
Yes, the forest
is back!

The sun sets on
the green forest.

Trees help the
land and help us.
Yep, plant a tree!

Oak Wood Huts

Deep in the forest, a girl treks past shadowy oak trunks where mobs like to hide. Nearby, someone cuts down every tree until only bare stumps remain, leaving the animals with nowhere left to go. Will the forest ever grow green again? Written for Jolly Phonics classrooms (Group 6: y /y/), this book practices words like 'yep', 'yes', 'yon', 'yum', 'yuck'.
