

Tap Tap Tap

Mama sits and sings a song. Red and pink string
twists fast.

Mama sings
a soft song.
Kim naps on the rug with a red blanket.

Tap, tap,
tap! Kim
blinks, but that tap will not stop.

Tap, tap, tap!
Kim dashes out quick to check on that thing.

Kim looks in a shack.

Gosh, a loom taps
and rocks!

Kim sits at the loom.

String spins
and twists
fast, and Kim gasps.

Zing! The
loom zips up in a gust, and Kim clings on fast.

A big pink bird flaps next to
Kim. Kim grins
as the song
rings in the wind.

Splash! The
loom tips
and sinks,
but Kim clings on.

Kim pops
back up, wet and glad. Fish
flip and splash
with Kim.

Flash! Pink
plants pop
and spin
with Kim.
Such fun!

Kim blinks and is back on the rug. Mama sings, and Kim thanks Mama for the song.

Tap Tap Tap

Every afternoon, Kim's mother sits at her loom and sings, weaving threads as bright as flowers. Then one night a strange tapping wakes Kim, leading her out into the street to an old, dusty loom that won't stop shaking. What happens when she sits down and rests her hands on its frame? Created to align with the UFLI Foundations scope and sequence (Lesson 53: Digraphs Review 2 (incl. CCCVC)), this book practices words like 'blinks', 'dashes', 'quick', 'splash', 'thanks'.
